Abstract: "In this training video, Motivational Interviewing founder William R. Miller demonstrates the method in an actual counseling session with a client struggling with smoking cessation and drinking. Miller creates an atmosphere that is conducive to change by expressing empathy and encouragement, rolling with resistance, and helping the client explore the gaps between their current behaviors and the life they would like to lead. You will learn how Motivational Interviewing helps people resolve their ambivalence about changing addictive behaviors. Jon Carlson and Judy Lewis introduce Dr. Miller and facilitate an in-depth discussion of the further impact and uses of the model. Intended for students and practitioners in clinical psychology, counseling, social work, and related health professions." - Supplied by publisher.

Abstract: "In this training video, Dr. Bruce S. Liese utilizes his Cognitive Therapy approach in an actual counseling session with a client struggling with alcohol abuse, cocaine abuse, and involvement in the criminal justice system. Liese collaborates with the client to identify and change the thought patterns and maladaptive beliefs that relate to addictive behaviors and lead to substance abuse. You will develop an understanding of the key concepts of Cognitive Therapy for addictions and its relevance in addictions counseling today; gain insight into Liese's therapy style and how he works with clients to modify thought patterns and beliefs, leading to change in addictive behaviors; and learn how to apply cognitive therapy to help your clients successfully tackle their addictions and other life challenges. Intended for students and practitioners in clinical psychology, counseling, social work, and related health professions." - Supplied by publisher.

Juvenile Food Allergy Collection

Abstract: Join Alexander on his first day of kindergarten, as he teaches his classmates about food allergy. Unlike all the other elephants he knows, Alexander can't eat peanuts, because he's allergic to them. In this Food Allergy & Anaphylaxis Network (FAAN) production, he discovers that his new friends not only accept his food allergy, but are eager to learn about it and help him stay safe. This DVD is designed to show children with food allergy that they are not alone and what they can do to stay safe when at school. It combines the animated story of Alexander with interviews of real-life children who have food allergy, and is particularly useful for opening up frank discussions about going to school with the condition. - Container
